

Character animation has always been difficult to create in computer graphics. Using many of the same tools as traditional cel animators to plan out the animation makes this type of animation much easier.

Many computer animators today have a computer background and do not understand the fundamentals of animation. This is unfortunate in that many people view the computer animations, see them as cold and flat, and get a negative impression of computer animation in general.

